AN APOSTLE OF UNMITIGATED

the Alleged Great Southwestern Benevolent Association, of Littl Rock, and His Little Game.

J. A. Burton, a man about 55 years of age all and slim, with gray hair and whiskers, who has been stopping at various boarding-houses in the vicinity of the Southern Pacific depot for the past year or more, has been practicing a life insurance game which leserves exposure. Burton claims to repre-sent "The Great Southwestern Benevolent Association" (whatever that is) of Little Ark. As an apostle of great be-ence Burton worked his way into Rock, Ark nevoience Burton worked his way into the good graces of numbers of poor people and induced them to insure their lives with him. There were, of course, promises of snug sums to be paid after death and com-fortable sums in case of sickness. Just what was nominated in the bond cannot be stated here, as none of the policles are at hand, but the inducements to insure were roseate.

Among the number who took stock in Burton and his great western benevolence was Mrs. J. E. Love, a poor widow who paid out almost her last available dollar to provide against the rainy day which she feared vide against the rainy day which she feared was coming.

About four or five months ago Mrs. Love was taken sick and was confined to her bed for two months. She still remains practically helpless.

Application was made to great benevolent Burton for the sick benefits which should have been forthcoming. He said there was a matter of 44 yet due the company and, if that was paid, he would attend to the benefits. A friend of the sick woman paid the fee, but, at the same time, had a letter of inquiry written to the head office in Little Rock, Ark.

The inquiry brought forth the following response:

LITTLE ROCK (Ark.), Dec. 2, 1886.

Mrs. J. E. Love, Los Angeles, Cal.—Dear Maddams: I have been out of town on business, and in ans. will say that we have not received any money from you for almost one year. Mr. Burton says he has $13.50 he colected from you which he had no authority. I gave him a list of names that had let their policies, lapse and told him if they would reinstate to colect from them. He rote me last spring that he had colected money from you. I told him he had no authority to do so. He now writes that he has colected money from you. I told him he had no authority to do so. He now writes that he has colected more from you. I notifyed you not to pay him or any ag't money. When he sends on the $13.50 then I will have you reinstated and settle with you.

Yours Truly,

J. A. Mills, Sec'y. how much money have you paid him When he sends in that money I will settle with him.

When he sends in that money I will settle with him.

When confronted with this letter, Burton coolly admitted that he had retained the money and appropriated it to his own use. He promised to refund the money collected from Mrs. Love at some, time which he declined to specify definitely, but inferred that, it would be in the sweet by and-by (when he should get it).

Burton is a dangerous old fraud, and, in the interest of people who may be subject to his wiles, The Times now exposes him. Whether "The Great Southwestern Benevolent Association" would pay any benefits, even were the fees turned over to it, is not demonstrated. Perhaps it would be best to obtain a report from some authoritative source before seeking its benign protection.

TEACHERS' EXAMINATIONS.

Large Proportion of Unsuccessful Applicants. The regular examination for teachers' certificates has been in progress since Tuesday, at the Normal School building. Thirty-sev-en applicants presented themselves at the commencement but only eleven were able to pass in the test subjects. Of these only one succeeded in gaining the 80 per cent, required for a certificate. This one successful lady is Emily C. Clark, at present teacher of the school in Felton district. The or of the school in return distance. In mumber of failures at this examination is unusual. The questions, however, were in general, simpler than than they have been was just the same.

Arizonians in Los Angele

Among the Arizonians in town a TIMES eporter noticed R. N. Leatherwood, for-nerly Mayor of Tucson, now elected to the Assembly; P. R. Brady, for several years Sheriff of Pinal county; Mike Gray, one of Sheriff of Pinal county; Mike Gray, one of the best-known men in the eastern portion of the Territory; Charles R. Drake, ex-Recorder of Pima county, elected to the Territorial Council; L.-W. Blinn, Member of the Council from Cochise county; Ben Goodrich, District Attorney of Cochise county, on his way to do a little lobbying at Prescott; Dan Ming, a leading cattleman and weather prophet; Richard Rule, a prominent Tombstone journalist; and J. R. Crosby, a Pima county stockman.

The quickest way for passengers from the southern part of the Territory to reach Prescott is by way of Colton, and most of the travelers utilize the opportunity to stop over for a day or two in Los Angeles. This city will soon occupy the enviable position of Rome, to which all roads were said to lead.

onora says that quite a trade is being built up between Hermosillo, the capital of that State, and the East in oranges, which are State, and the East in oranges, which are shipped by the carload by way of the Guaymas road and Benson. These oranges are very sweet and are preferred in Arizona to the California fruit. They are purchased in the neighborhood of Hermosillo in small quantities at 50 cents per hundred. Better rates could be made for them in bulk, but the difficulty is to secure delivery from the Mexicans at any definite time. They will make a contract to deliver on a certain day, which they may fill next day, or next week, or not at all. If a few live Americans should go down there a large industry would be built up, as oranges seem to grow in Sonora with scarcely any attention. In view of this, it will be well to see that Congress does not admit Mexican fruits free, as has been proposed.

Caught on the Wing.

A special officer brought W. F. Heilbronner up from the depot yesterday and gave him to the police. The conductor on train No. 19 had received a telegram that the man was wanted at Sumner on some charge, and turned him over to the special aforesaid. At the police station Hell-bronner gave an assumed name, but was given away by his rubber stamp. The Sumner constable will be here after him today.

The Colton Murderer Thus Far Eludes Justice.

The excitement in Colton and sur towns over the atrocious murder committee at the Transcontinental Hotel on the nig of the 4th, continues at high pressure. crime was one of the most deliberate or ord—the evident handiwork of as cool rulating a villain as ever graced the It is evident from the circumstances the Springer came from the north with the fix It is evident from the circumstances that Springer came from the north with the fixed intention of butchering the confiding girls with him. He wanted to find a good place to commit the crime; and his selection proves him an adept. A novice would have been easly traced. But Springer selects a lively town, the junction of two-transcontinental railroads, and goes to a hotel. He takes his victim to the room, murders her noiselessly in her sleep, burns up—as he supposes—all tell-tale clews, locks the door behind him, jumps aboard some passing train and is some hundreds of miles away before even the lightning can be put upon his track. Whither he went, no one knows, thrugh from the fact that he was well acquainted with the toughs of lower Arizona makes it probable that he struck out that way and is now safe below the Mexican line. Every minute counts in such a pursuit; and in view of his long start it will not be surprising if the law never gets its fingers on his hemp-worthy windpipe.

Sheriff John A. Cole, of San Bernardino, has sent out postals offering $100 reward for the apprehension of Wm. Pierce (whose true name is Springer), the murderer of Caroline Handorff. Springer is described as 30 to 35 years of age; straight built; about 5 feet 11 inches tall; about 180 pounds in weight, light complexioned with sandy moustache, blue eyes and straight hair cut close; wore brown pants and yest, a reddish chinchilla coat with black velvet collar, white, soft hat and a brown cameo ring on the third finger of his right hand.

as 30 to 35 years of age; straight built; about 5 feet 11 inches tall; about 180 pounds in weight, light complexioned with sandy to moustache, blue eyes and straight hair cut close; wore brown pants and vest, a reddish shinchilla coat with black velvet collar, white, soft hat and a brown cameo ring on the third finger of his right hand.

In its account of the horror the San Bernardino Index gives the following points, not heretofore brought out:

The latest discovery "in the case is the finding of two bottles of coal oil in the room where the tragedy was enacted. These had evidently been full, and had been allowed to empty themselves on the carpet, only a short distance from where the letters were burned. This gives the idea that the villain meant more than single murder. He shought that when the papers or letters had burned down to the carpet, which was saturated with the oil leading to the bed, that the room would be burned with all its contents, the hotel destroyed, and he cared not how many other lives might be lost in the configaration. The carpet luckily was of a heavy woolen fabricand when the paper was destroyed the flame failed to catch any further. He did not set the bed on fire because he wanted time to get away himself before the room gave the alarm by blazing up. It was a cleverly laid plan, but failed.

The small hammer, cut off at the handle for convenient handling, was left by thebrute on the bed and with the photograph is now in the hands of the Sheriff and deputy.

The murdered girl cannot be more than 20 years of age. She is medium size, was rather prepossessing in personal appearance and was in life apparently of a modest disposition, her apparel denoting that she was of a refined nature.

The lindex is informed by one of the trair men who came along with the passenger train, that the man and woman seemed to be very happy and all along the route, after he first noticed them, they were chatting very agreeably, often playing little pranks. He took them for a newly married pair.

The San Bernar criminals, remarked that the man looked either insane, or as if he were an escaping thief. All the probabilities are that he was the escaping murderer. Othersthought it strange that such a well-dressed man should be attempting to beat the rall-road. If this were the murderer, he undoubtedly moved northward, in hopes to get on the early freight train going north, which he may have done.

When the Sheriff called at the depot to caution the employés to look out for the felon's appearance, they emphatically assured him that his man had already gone north, and described him exactly, to the velvet collar of his coat.

THE EQUESCURRICULUM.

Arrival of W. C. Coup's Band of Edu-cated Horses.

The horses composing W. C. Coup's "Equescurriculum" arrived last night and the first performance will be given this evening, at the Pavillion, corner of Fourth and Main streets. There will also be a street parade at 11 o'clock. This show is supposed main streets. There will also be a street parade at 11 o'clock. This show is supposed to be one of the finest of its class in the world. It has exhibited recently to crowded houses at Boston, New York, Baltimore, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Washington, Cincinnati, Chicago and San Francisco.

The management desire to call attention to the fact that one year ago ten of these horses were wild on the plains of Oregon, strangers to bit or bridle, and prior to that time no human hand had touched them. They reached Chicago October 18th and received their first lesson November 5th. They were educated by Farmer Buckly, of Delaware, Wis., who uses no other means except that of kindness. They are so attached to him that when he is pleased they seem to be. They appreciate the applause of the audience. Each horse knows not only his own name, but that of all the others, and understands several hundred words.

Commencing on Monday, a performance will be given every evening and a matinee in the afternoon, the latter specially for the benefit of ladies and children with whom this show is always a great favorite.

Warned Against Bugs.

The regular monthly meeting of the Pomona Fruit Growers' Protective Union was held in McComas's old hall, Pemona, on Thursday night, President George J. Mitchell in the chair. The principal feature of the evening was an address by George Rice, of this city, who spoke by special invitation. His theme was "Insect pests and remedies," which he handled with the skill of long experience. He spoke for three-quarters of an hour, and gave the Pomonans some pointed advice about the necessity of nipping their bugs in the scale.

section-house and sat down in the dining-room to wait for our train, which was to arrive at 10:30. The lady who presided the house had a very familiar look to So did her big, black-bearded husband and her bright-faced boy. I did not identify and her bright-faced boy. I did not identify them, however, and soon sauntered down the slope to De Armand's little 'dobe store for a chat with the proprietor. We talked awhile of old times, laughed at the remembrance of how Palmer had barricaded his door to keep the coyotes out, and had a social time generally. Then as it approached train-time I returned to Doc, who was still confabulating with the little Mrs. Kelly of the section-house. At 10:20 we staggered our belongings to the side of the track, and I borrowed the track walker's lantern to flag the train. It was cold as charity, that night, and Doc staid in the house while I paced up and down the track, waiting for the headlight to shine around the curve three miles to the west. There was no telegraph station to give us pointers on delays. The hours crawled by as if each was going to the funeral of Father Time, and still no headlight. I dassn't go into the house to warm up, for fear the train would steal a march on me, so up and down the cold, moonlit track my gentle hoof-beats echoed. At last at 12:30 a new star rose on the western horizon, and a low roar stole down the valley. It was that dodgasted train. When it reached the mile and a half hill, I "gave 'em the lantern," for it is a stiff down grade, and I didn't want any miss. I stood in the middle of the track, and agitated that light till the train was within a hundred yards and had five times whistled to stop. Doc had come out, and we grasped our luggage. And what do you think? Why, nothing much, only that measly train sailed by at 40 miles an hour, like a tenpin ball down Jupiter's bowling alley, while we looked at its terminal red-light with the feeling of a fellow when he sees his Sunday girl walk off with the other man. The only wonder to me is that my remarks didn't cause the whole affair to jump the track then and there. This was "a pretty how-de-do, a pretty for our lournalistic eye, and, pounded on the table with exasperated fists. The little section-louy finally poked her head them, however, and soon sauntered down the slope to De Armand's little 'dobe store for a walked back to the section-house, overawed the inhospitable mastiff with the cold glare of our journalistic eye, and pounded on the table with exasperated fists. The little section-lady finally poked her head out of a side room. We confided our sorrows to her, and she immediately disappeared to don some apparel. In a few moments she returned with her mouth full of kindly condolence and her arms full of bed clothes, which she proceeded to deposit in the middle of the dining-room floor (the bed clothes, understand me, not the condolences). She had robbed the old man, and I never shall know how they escaped freezing that night. She made us a clever bed on the floor, and wished us a good night, with many apologies for her lack of accommodations. We rolled curselves up in the blankets, and gazed at the ceiling, too mad to go to sleep for severial hours. By the time we were cooled off, the floor began to wear through. Doe said she never knew before that she had so many bones, and every one of 'em bore down on the floor. It didn't trouble me—being about two hundred times as soft as some beds I have had—but dld make me dream that I was tramping again.

Well, the night finally got tired and went was tramping again.

Well, the night finally got tired and went Well, the night finally got tired and went off, and we arose to a hard-earned breakfast. No more train till 10:30 that night—and we didn't feel so solid about it then. We were booked for Isleta the night before, too. After breakfast I went over to De Armand's to hunt up means of transportation to Laguna, where there is a telegraph station, at which all trains have to stop for orders. We finally dug up a fat and prosperous-looking Laguna who had a farm wagon and agreed to take us in. As I walked back contentedly to the section-house, a large light dawned on me and set me on a run. I jumped into the kitchen, caught the little section-woman a hug that must have astonished her ribs, and kissed her athletically. She looked as though it would be astonishedher ribs, and kissed her athletically. She looked as though it would be quite natural to see the house walk down the track, next. Bless her soul, I had just reasoned out where that motherly little face belonged. It was Mrs. Bryan Keily, to whose little box-car section-house at barren Hualapai a wayworn traveler of my intimate acquaintance came with a broken arm about 10 days less than two years ago. If he ever forgets the warm heart that cared for him there, I hope he may never take another step.

I felt ashamed of myself for not sooner recognizing her, but was unprepared to find her several hundred miles from where she belongs in my memory. She was still looking at me with a suspicion of tears in her eyes, and trying to "place" me. I asked her what she had done with the dogs that were once going to eat up a stranger's dog by the name of Shadow. Then she "savvied." We had a right cordial talk there, all around, before fat old Domingo and his fat old squaw came rattling up to the door with their proud turnout.

After a warm goodby we were off down the valley, crossing the railroad and the creek and rolling over the uplands past Marmon's fishpond, past big droves of Lazuna cattle, past an Indian who was trying to ride down a coyote, and at last up over a steep hill to the back of Laguna itself. Domingo took us down to the station at the other side of the town, dumped us and our traps, and drove off with the same benignant expression that had roosted upon his face throughout our whole acquaintance with him.

expression that had roosted upon his face throughout our whole acquaintance with him.

The station agent and operator was a goodnatured recent importation from Ohio, by the name of Rubendale. He treated us with great eleverness, and placed his rooms at our disposal—which was a sweet boon in a place where accommodations are prety short. We got dinner at the house of Gov. Marmon, an American who married a Laguna girl and now rules over the pueblo. Then we made a long tour of the town, visited the natives en famille, worked the camera considerably, and had a good time all around. The inhabitants of Laguna are the richest of all the Puebloshave a fine town on a commanding hill of rock, good houses, many cattle and horses, and abundant facilities for civilization. Over 250 of their children are attending American schools—at Carlisle, Pa., Albaquerque and elsewhere. This is an admirable thing for them, but it knocks out the romance. With their new-fangled ways they are not a thousandth part as interesting as the Acomas. Their moral grade is not so high, either.

In the early evening, while we sat outside the station, a wild nu! hu! way wafted

The Train was in a Hurry-Meeting Old Friends from the Desert—A Ride with Br'er Domingo-Visiting the Natives at Laguna.

Pears like we've been an awful while getting from Br'er Bibo's hospitable home at Old Cubero down to the railroad at Cubero. As a matter of fact, though the same guilles, accquias, holes and creeks were all in the road, the ride was not so terrifically long after all. We arrove at the lone section-house at about 7:30 p.m., and lighted down in placid composure. Antonio was to wait for our train, to get some wool sacks. The Ventura Free Press has the following further sensation about the aleged buried treasure of the famous andit Josquin Murrieta:

Our readers will remember that about two recks ago we published an account concring a sum of money supposed to have sen buried in this county by Josquin Murieta a good many years ago.

Since writing the account we have met a croon who was passing through Ventura nearch of the wealth, and who claims to the son of the man Murrieta murdered and stole the money from. At his request re emit his name and give the substance of its story, which is as follows: "I was born Australia in 1849, my parents being Englah. While I was quite young my mother ded and my father came to California. He add in his possession about $60,000 worth of lamonds, which he carried in a buckkin belt. One day after our arial he unwittingly made known the act that he had the diamonds on his person and Joaquin Murrieta hearing of it murared him in Santa Clara county. This as in 1853, when I was but 4 years of age, furrieta gave me in charge of a Spanish roman—a relative of his—and, converting part of the diamonds into gold, buried early all of it in one spot. One day beforeoing on some raid I saw him give this roman a map of the place where the treame was buried. I afterwards stole the map nd ran away, after staying several yeras at his place. I wandered down into Mexico nally. There I met Mendoza, one of Mutrita's gang, face to face on two different casions, but as I was a growing outh he did not recognize me, allowed in the country each time I saw him. I supposed he was after the map describing where he treasure was hidden and I feared he rould murder me to obtain it. He shet a am in that country and was sentenced to a mag term in the penitentiary and I then elid him the were saw me again to inform me that he was earching for me, to tell me where I would in the money and that before his death he ad written him a letter and told him if he were say me again to inform me that he was earching for me, to tell me where I ritten to the Mexican. I feel assured that will get possession of the money rightlly belonging to me. There is about $50,ln all, Murrieta having used some of it.
It his conscience troubled him and that is the reason he told Mendoza to find me, sould have come back here long ago, but till lately I did not know the members of a gang, were all dead, and I was afraid by would find and kill me."

After questioning and cross-questioning narrator, at different times during sevidays, our reporter is convinced that he is the truth. His whole demeanor and versation bore the air of sincerity, and doubt not that he is the rightful heir of buried treasure.

doubt not that he is the rightful heir of a buried treasure. Selipe Castro, the Spaniard in the penitiary, told Sheriff Branham, of San José, 5 following story: "I was in Santarbara in 1883, and there I fell in with pelardo Mendoza. We became intimate, done day, when he had been drinking a tie too much, he said he knew where see was a mint of money. I pressed in for particulars, but for a time he wild not tell me any more. Whisky ally opened his heart and he said that hen Joaquin Murrieta left for the Tulare ains—a trip which resulted in his death—(Mendoza) was left behind, being ill with ver. Murrieta exacted a terrible oath on Mendoza that he would not divulge a whereabouts of the treasure. He was persitious and I tried to convince him at Murrieta dead was powerless to harm m, and at last he consented to take a trip the place. Two days afterward we set it. #### Magnolia Tract! The

On West Washington Street, at the City Line.

THE HELLMAN TWO-HORSE STREET CAR LINE IS UNDER COntract to be extended at once from the present terminus, at Figueroa on Washington st., to a point in front of these lots. This is decidedly the best street-car line in the city, and property along its extension will go booming up, from fity to one bundred per cent; as it has elsewhere on the building of a new or the extension of an old street-car line.

Washington street is the broadest and finest avenue in the city, in a southwesterly direction, and is the main thoroughfare to Santa Monica and the sea. Four street car lines built and three others projected in a southwesterly course, point to the fact that Los Angeles is making a grand march to the ocean, and in a few years will be almost if not quite a continuous city, grasping hands with the old and new cities by the briny deep.

If you want property for a home, or where the increase of values will be the greatest, buy right in the midst of the great current of the city's growth—on WEST WASHINGTON ST.

We are now offering lots in this beautiful MAGNOLIA TRACT, at first prices that must soon double in value.

The best of soil, and pure, soft water is had in wells at reasonable depth. TERMS, only % cash, balance in six and tweive months.

The hotel is now open for the winter season, and is considered one of the most desirable in Southern California for comfort and pleasure. The favored location of the house is such that the sun shines into the rooms on the ocean side all day long, thus making a combination of sunshine and pure air from the Pacific that is not often found.

THE TIMES learns from the king-pin of the Wabash system on this coast that the railroad rate-war is not to be mere wind, but hard fact. He has ordered cutting on his line, and the fight will reach Los Angeles in a day or two.

BEN: PERLEY POORE tells a good story about a man he once saw in a lunatic asylum straddling a wooden chair, cracking his whip and yelling for it to go on. Thinking to please the driver he remarked that that was a fine horse. The lanatic responded: "This is not a horse, it is a hobby." Then he suddenly propounded the question: "Do you know the difference between a horse and a hobby?" Ben: said that he didn't. "Well," said the lunatic, "the difference is that you can get off a TEN vessels, loaded with lumber. arrived at Wilmington Harbor Thursday, making, with those already inside, a fleet of 12 to be unloaded within a As the Humboldt bar blockade has been raised, more vessels may be expected from day to day. There were at one time 46 ships locked in the Humboldt Harbor. How many of these were destined for Wilmington is not known, but we may calculate on a good third of them. The arrival of this fleet puts an end to the "lumber famine" which has prevailed here for a couple of weeks past, and building can now proceed with wonted vigor.

THE TIMES is in possession of private information to the effect that another rate war between the transcontinental rated very shortly. In the present crowded condition of Los Angeles, and with a hegira of Easterners about to descend upon us, the question arises, What shall we do with them? If property-owners are wise they will build with all the alacrity they can muster. Available houses for residence and business are going to be gilt-edge in vestments. There are hardly a dozen such houses to be rented in Los Anes today, and, with an immense influx of new people, rents are likely to advance. A long-headed public policy would dictate that, after doing all we Northern and Southern California.

The unhappy north is still busy in devising ways and means to attract the attention of excusionists who are pour-ing into Los Angeles, and to lure them. if possible, from the delights of this fair and sunny southland to the northern portions of the State. The San José Mercury says:

Mercury says:

The proposition now is to hold a midwinter fair, in Santa Clara county, but for Central California, to begin about the first week in February, 1887, and to contain an exhibit of outproducts in the way of oranges, lemons, limes, nuts, olives, raisins, glace fruits and flowers. The time chosen is most opportune, for if, before the noise of the northern fair has well ceased to sound in the ears of the past, the central counties call attention to an equally meritorious display, assurance that the whole State of California is one long strip of fruitfulness will be made doubly sure. There is another reason why the time is fortunate. The excursionists pouring into Los Angeles are failing to find room or accommodation and yet an undiminished stream is expected during the next three months. If, in the crowded south, the report is circulated of a splendid fair being held in a valley like ours, surpassing in beauty any other in the world, the current will be turned hither and the very result for which we have been striving will be reached.

To all of these movements Los Angeles has no manner of objection whatever. She is willing that her visitors should see and compare all sections of the State, and will put no hindrance in the way of their doing so. She has no jealousy of any part of this great and growing Commonwealth, for she real-izes that the upbuilding and prosperity of one section has its indirect influence upon the growth and prosperity of all other sections. The only thing that she ever does complain of is the misrepresentation and malicious jealousy that seeks to injure her for the sake of the upbuilding of its own particular

There is no occasion for this, for every portion of the State has its attractions, and possesses sufficient inducements to secure a large immigration when its resources shall be properly set forth and made known. The climate of all parts of the State is far su-The climate of perior to that of the States lying beyond the Rockies. It is a land of fruitfulness, of fertile soil and bright skies, where rigorous winter does not exist, and where comfert and plenty reward the hand of the willing laborer. so that the sooner this sectional jealousy is done away with, and each portion of the State sets to work legitimately to secure its own upbuilding, the sooner will the North join hands with the South and keep pace with its material prosperity and growth.

We have faith in the future of the whole State of California if its different sections are united, and not hindered in their advancement by jealousy and detraction. Honesty is the best policy in all of our relations, and it is the surest way to success.

Among the New Year's papers which the mail brings nowadays, none are more replete with solid statistics than the issues of the Kansas City Journal and Times. The former contains 28 pages, with a big map, and the latter 20 pages, also with a map. They show, in extenso, that the real-estate sales of the city alone for the year 1886, foot up $50,000,000; that the bank clearings were $284,012,671; that the banking capital was increased $3,580,000; that over $25,500,000 worth of cattle were slaughtered; that the jobbing grocery houses sold between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000 worth of goods and the dry goods sent out amounted to between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. The new build ings of the year exceeded $10,000,000 in value and 984 new firms were established in the city. With such an example as that before us, we of Los Angeles need have no fears that our boom is getting out of breath. Ten years ago Kansas city as Los Angeles is today and had no better apparent prospects.

No w that Los Angeles is getting to be a big town and it is becoming more and more desirable to save statistics and observe the fire limit ordinance and all that sort of thing; would it not be a good idea for the City Fathers to provide for the issuance of building statistics and prohibit the erection of houses without them. The more statistical information which such an ordinance would secure would be worth the trouble involved. At pres ent it is impossible to obtain full and reliable data of the buildings erected. The architects constitute about the only available sources of information. and they can give only an incomplete list, as many structures erected by owners and contractors do not come under architectural supervision. The subject of building permits is respectfully submitted.

GOVERNOR BARTLETT gave his inaugural address to the Sacramento Bee, in confidence, to be held until after its delivery, and the editor of that paper proceeded at once to violate the trust imposed in him and published it. The address is thus given to the public two days before its probable time of delivery. Some newspaper men regard an act of this sort as journalistic enterprise, but the public and the press at large are disposed to call it the grossest treachery and breach of decency. None but a hoodlum newspaper would do it.

THE exact difference between San José and Los Angeles enterprise is well illustrated by two brevities which appeared in the Pacific coast items of Thursday's Bulletin. They were: "San can to induce immigration, we ought to do our level best to keep it. Build have its electric railway in working houses, gentlemen; the more the order next week." Don't you see the point ?- [Jan José Mercury.

d talk goes on inc the roads in Souther Raliroad talk goes on increasing. They do say all the roads in Southern California are pushing for San Diego. Of course the route by way of Oceanside, Escondiuo, Poway, etc., is the choice, and surveyors are now viewing a road between the first-mentioned places. Well, our valley is on the line of this road, and whether it come early or late, we will have a share in it. We are all interested most in the road that makes the dirt fly first, and we will quietly wait to see which that shall be. Other places in our county are "sure of a road" before a year, particularly San Jacinto and some points surrounding. Santa Monica's Solidity.

Santa Monica's Solidity.

[Santa Monica Outlook.]

There has been no "boom" in Santa Monica, but the appreciation of property has been steady. The growth is healthy. During the year 1880 not less than a million feet of lumber has been shipped into Santa Monica, and, as a result, there are about fifty-five new cottage residences, averaging a value of at least $1000, and one of the handsomest hotels on the Pacific coast. Seven loads of extracted honey—the product of the adjacent mountains—were shipped from this point and there are two or three carloads left. Last year's barley product raised in this vicinity amounted to 100,900 sacks; besides, there was considerable wool, corn sides, there was considerable wool, corn and hay. The real-estate transactions foot up $300,000—some of the lots running as high as $1750, and all at good prices.

Conspires to Boom.

The San Bernardino Street Railroad Company had twelve men at work yesterday, laying their track on Third street. Over 250 feet of ties were laid, and the steel rails were scattered along the track a long way. Several tons of rails are, already on hand, and more are due. The road will be in running order in a complete weeks. Events Several tons of rails are, already on hand, and more are due. The road will be in running order in a couple of weeks. Events seem to conspire in booming San Bernardino. Three new railroads centering here: two street railroads, new workshops, roundhouse, etc., at the depot, a new railroad depot practically in the heart of the city and an influx of men and money ty the city, all at once.

Perhaps it Will.

The Union Pacific is discriminating against San Francisco and in favor of Portland, which is natural, as the Union Pacific has a terminus at Portland and none at San Francisco. Perhaps in course of time San Francisco will understand that a city which has only one railroad company cannot company that the sandy of the sa has only one railroad company cannot compete with cities like Los Angeles and Portland, which have two each.

After eulogizing Jackson, Thurman spoke of the rapid growth of the country, and said that at the present ratio of increase another hundred years would see, if the Union lasts, 200,000,000 more people under one govern-ment than now inhabit the whole continent of Europe. Frank Lawler of Chicago responded to the toast, "The working man: twenty-five years of republican administration has left him at the mercy of monopolists." Lawler referred to the tariff, and explained why he had voted against the consideration of the Morrison bill. He said that he was opposed to such sweeping reductions of tariff as would destroy or impair American industries and subject them to competition with pauper European labor. He then spoke of the extravagance of Republican administrations and the, duty which was incumbent upon the Democratic party to correct the evils of its predecessors.

A large number of telegrams and letters were received, among the writers being Gov. Hill, of New York, Henry Watterson, of Louisville, and prominent Southern Democrats.

CLEVELAND (O.), Jan. 7.—[By the Western Associated Press.] The inquest into the cause of the Baltimore and Ohio wreck at Republic, O., was begun at 2 o'clock this on at Tiffin. A special to the Leader is being held, was crowded. The first witness examined was L. F. Fletcher, ductor of the freight train. He said: Kiler was engineer of the freight, and W. J. seneca siding, about three and a half miles from here, and sidetracked for the eastern averages. After this train passed, we had 45 minutes in which to make the Republic it siding. We left this place with 140 pounds of steam. After getting two miles, I noticed that the train was slacking. I went forward over the cars, 18 in number, to the engine to see what was wrong. I found that the steam had run down to 40 pounds. I opened the door of the furnace and looked at the fire. I then looked at my watch and saw that we had but 4 minutes until No. 6, the west bound express, was due. I took to the the total the tengine of the furnace and looked at the fire. I then looked at my watch and saw that we had but 4 minutes until No. 6, the west bound express, and is in the curve and signaled to stop. As the express approached I noticed that the engineer had reversed his engine. In the mean time the freight had come to a stand and the engineer had shut off steam, and jumped off when the collision occurred. The engineer had been drinking. I saw whim take two drinks of whisky at Bloomdale and two at Fostoria. When I saw we had but 4 minutes to make the stand was down to 60 pounds. We were then going about three miles per hour. The conductor came in and looked at the fire and at all it was all right. When the conductor went ahead to flag and saw the express coming, he yelled back for us to jump. Charles Snider, of Columbus, O., was front brakeman on the freight. He said: 'I was in the cab of the engine and noticed that they had but one gauge of water when they should of had at least three. WILLIAMS ON INTER-STATE COMMERCE.
Senator Williams expressed his views at Jength today on the Inter-State Commerce Bill. As already stated, he will vote against the bill. "I will do this, not because it would hurt the railroads," he said, "for I do not know that it would hurt them, but I am satisfied that this bill would prove a serious injury to California. I am satisfied that it would raise through rates, and that would take the tea trade over the Canadian Pacific and prevent shipments of cereals and fruits from California to the East over the overland roads. This bill might be a great benefit to some persons in the East, and if I represented those localities in the Senate I would vote for the bill; but I am satisfied that it would injure us on the Pacific coast, and for that reason I will vote against it."

A NEW PASTOR.

Reception to Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Phil-lips, of Leadville.

There was quite a large audience last night at the Third Congregational Church, near the railroad depot, the occasion being a reception tended to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pillips, late of Leadville. Mr. Phillip has come to take charge of this church. He resided for three years at Leadville, where to take charge of this church. He he was very successful in his ministrations. Stirring speeches were made by Messrs. Bainard, Colcord, Noble, Wells, Sumner Stirring speeches were made by Messrs. Bainard, Colcord, Noble, Wells, Sumner and Harris.

Mr. Phillips, in his speech, said he was very appreciative of the kind reception that had been tendered him. He was a thorough Congregationalist and had been taught to bend everything to the good of the church to which he belongs. From what he flad seen in looking over the field in this city he should say that their denomination is much neglected. Not nearly so much had been done as might be expected in a city which was composed so largely of people from New England, where the Congregationalists were the strongest religious body. He saw that he would have to look to neighboring churches for assistance in spiritual work and had no doubt but that such assistance would be cheerfully rendered. He had left a position paying almost twice as much salary and parted from a host of warm friends to accept this charge and he counted on the hearty copperation of the congregation in his efforts to build up and enlarge the sphere of usefulness of the church. In conclusion he invited friends to call upon him and Mrs. Phillips at their residence, 566 Buena Vista street.

After the speeches, coffee and other refreshments were served by the ladies of the congregation and Mr. Phillips shook hands with such of the audience as desired to make his acquaintance.

AMERICAN MISSIONARIES INDEMNIFIED The Tsung-Li-Yamen of China has agreed to pay $25,000 to the American missionaries who suffered losses during the recent riots at Chung King. The settlement was effected through the efforts of Minister Denby.

The Hong-Kong Mail says the troubles on the frontier of Tonquin and China have asthe frontier of Tonquin and China have assumed most serious proportions. News has been brought from Pakhoi to Hong-Kong by the German steamer Signal that large bodies of Chinese pirates attacked the French garrison at Hakoi on the 24th of November, and after three days' seige completely annihilated it. They also attacked Mongkai with similar results. The latter is a town 10 miles from the coast on the border line of China and Tonquin. No particulars of the massacre which occurred at Mongkai were given. Hakoi is about 30 miles south of Mongkai on the coast. The French had a small fortification there, with a garrison of 60 men, under command of Lieut. MacMahon, a nephew of Marshal MacMahon. After three days' seige only 23 of the garrison remained alive. These made a sortie, but not one survived. The latest information states that Hakoi and Mongkai are in flames. It is believed that the same forces which captured the boundary commissioners perpetrated these massacres.

A THIEF OF TIME.

Constable Aguirre Cleverly Catches a Bold Operator. Constable Martin G. Aguirre made his first arrest under the new régime yesterday, and a very clever arrest it was. Thursday afternoon a fellow went into a little jewelry shop on Commercial street and asked to look at some watches. The proprieto showed him some and went back to the safe for more. The thief, meantime, grabbed seven watches and fortified behind space, being vainly pursued by several persons. being vainly pursued by several persons. The police yesterday arrested a man for the crime, but not the right one, as it turned out. Constable Aguirre armed himself with a description and sallied out. At the corner of Commercial and Los Angeles streets last evening he collared his man, who had disguised himself with a "biled" shirt, a necktie and a new hat, and had been shaven and shorn. The fellow kicked like a gorgeous bovine, but was locked up in the county jail and was subsequently identified by the jeweler and others.

Orange has "done herself proud" in showing the energy and enterprise requisite to obtain right of way and depot grounds for the San Diego branch of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad system. She has obtained depot grounds, and the right of way from Burriel Point to Santiago creek and is entitled to great credit therefor. Citizens of Santa Ana have subscribed $15,000, toward depot grounds and right of way expenses from Santiago creek to the San Joaquin ranch. It is now necessary for our citizens to take hold of this matter with earnestness or regret may come too late. citizens to take hold of this matter with earnestness or regret may come too late. THE BENEFIT DERIVED FROM INHALATION In the Circle of Sciences we read this sentence: "The general effect of oxygen in nature is that of a life giving principle." Ever since the discovery of oxygen by Priestly, has this idea been uppermost in the mind medical, for ing oxygen to the tissues of the body through the agency of the blood (and in the lungs, purifying the life-blood), the thought instinctively pops into the mind that if, in cases of disease or imperfect oxygenation, we could help the lungs to more than their usual amount of oxygen, we would be wielding a weapon of vast remedial effectiveness. Practical experience shows this theory to be remedial effectiveness.

Practical experience shows this theory to be correct, and never have we seen a case of asthma, bronchitis, consumption or general debility that the inhalations, properly administered, falled to relieve, more or less. "Its true that consumption in the third stage can only be relieved, except in rare instances, but our belief, founded upon experience, is that every case can be cured in the first stage, and the large majority in the second stage, climatic influences being favorable.

Los Angeles, Dec. 9, 1886.—Dr. W. N. Davis—Dear Sir. I wish to testify as to what your eatarrh treatment has done for me. I was troubled with catarrh for five or six years or more, and felt as if death would be a relief.
My sense of smell was entirely gone, and my hearing and taste were very much affected.
Your treatment relieved at once, and in a few weeks entirely cured me, and restored my lost senses to their natural condition.

PRISCILLA DUDLEY,
R. Renshaw's office, No. 20, Downey block.

Los Angeles, Aug. 6, 1886.—Dr. W. N. Davis: This is to certify that I have been troubled with the catarrh for four years. My breath was offensive and I used different kinds of-medicine, and it failed to cure me. I went to Dr. W. N. Davis and he treated me with the Medical Inhalation Treatment, and I was cured in 6 days and am now in perfect health. All those that are troubled with the catarrh had better go and consult Dr. Davis.

Los Angeles, June 13, 1886.—Dr. W. N. Davis, Dear Sir: I was troubled with a bad form of catarrh of the nose and throat for eight years, and I am thankful to say that your treatment has entirely cured me in a few weeks (eight weeks). My stomach was somewhat affected, causing indigestion, which was relieved at once. I have gained 10 pounds since I began treatment, and feel better than since I was a child.

MRS. ELLA WILKINSON, Figueroa st., near Ward.

This is to certify that I am a regularly-quali-fied physician, but not practicing, and have always believed estarrh of the chronic nasal variety to be an incurable affilction, but hear-ing of Dr. W. N. Davis's "New Treatment" and his success, I applied to him for medicine, and determined to try it in the case of one of my friends, and did so with the most satis-factory results, as improvement was imme-diate, and one prescription effected a cure. The case was of years standing and a bad

AMUSEMENTS.

Grand Opera House.—The comic opera Crispino e la Comare or The Cobler and the Fairy was presented last night by the Emma Abbott Company. The libretto furnished to the audience pretends to give the English translation of the opera as performed by the company, but candor compels the assertion that the libretto was very much in the wrong as was demonstrated in the performance. The work is really a Christmas fairy extravaganza set to some very pretty light, sparkling music, the principal part of which falls to the ladies' share. The tenor (Montegriffo) appeared in the first act, but was thereafter sat upon and extinguished. Broderick and Pruette had small parts, which they sustained with their well-knewn ability. The principal rôle of "Crispino" was taken by Walter Allen, who proved himself a clever buffo singer and a nimble dancer. He was not the "Crispino" of the opera, but he was very funny all the same and got a good deal of applau ie. Miss Annendale was a charming fairy, and Miss Abbott had no difficulty with the light music of her part, which is exactly suited to her voice. She introduced her favorite "Lullaby song" with very pretty effect.

The opera was followed by a rendition of the second act of Norma, in which Miss Abbott and Miss Annandale appeared.

A varied bill will be given at the matinee today, including the comic opera Carnival of Venice and a scene from Il Trovatore. In the evening The Mikado, with Emma Abbott as "Yum Yum" and Broderick, who is "worth going miles to see," as the great "Poeh Bah." GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—The comic opera

Faust at the Opera House Los Angeles, Jan. 7.—[To the Editor of THE Times.] I was one of the disappointed one present at the performance of Faust last night and regretted chiefly the cutting out of the fifth act, which includes the cathedral scene, one of the most impressive of the whole opera, and without which the performance seemed a lame one; although excellent as far as it went. I think Miss Abbott should have felt it due to the largest audience ever gathered in the theater to have rendered this act, and I make the suggestion now that if it should be given on her last night instead of the promised scene from Lucia, it will cause very general satisfaction. This is not my opinion alone, but that of a number of others whose voices together would form a Chorus. Los Angeles, Jan. 7.- To the Editor

CATARRH.

THE TERM CATARRH IS AP-I plied to a peculiar disorder of the nostri and adjacent parts, which prevails to an alar-ing extent and is productive of very serior and adjacent parts, which prevalls to an alarming extent and is productive of very serious consequences.

The most prominent and characteristic feature is a morbid discharge from the head, varying in its nature at different times.

In some there is an almost constant flow of clear, acrid fluid, but oftener an offensive, purulent or muco-purulent, greenish-yellow matter is secreted, which accumulates in the nostrils or drops into the throat, necessitating its frequent removal by blowing the nose or expectoration, and often by both processes. Sometimes patients feel as though their whole head was in a state of rottenness, so great is the amount of matter discharged and so fetid is its odor. The patient is greatly annoyed by the constant dropping into the throat of the morbid matter from the head, and as a recumbent position naturally favors the flow downward, his rest is frequently disturbed from this cause. Many sufferers are obliged to lie with the head very much elevated in order to sleep with some degree of comfort.

In others a tough, viscid and offensive phlegm collects behind and above the soft palate, in the passage between the throat and head, adhering to the parts with gluish tenacity. Its lodgment embarrasses respiration and creates a sensation of irritation and uneasiness in the affected locality, which gives rise to a constant and almost tirresitible desire to relieve the discomfort by drawing the mucus into the throat so as to eject it by the mouth. This practice, popularly known as "hawking," is characteristic of catarrh, and proves as embarrassing to the one affected as it is disagreeable to those around him.

Again, the offensive matter hardens and deposite itself on the membrane in the shape of dry, hard concretions, which are discharged which obstructs breathing and produces serience as to form /a regular plug in the nose which obstructs breathing and produces serience in the obstructs breathing and produces serience in the obstructs breathing and produces serience in the obstructs breathing an

by way of the nostrils or throat in lumps or fragments of a deep green tint. In some cases these incrustations accumulate to such an extent as to form a regular plug in the nose, which obstructs breathing and produces serious discomfort. So firmly do these incrustations adhere to the point of attachment that their removal usually requires the most violent efforts; not unfrequently they have to be torn from the membrane. Occasionally a solid cast of notable size is expelled, on which there are generally traces of blood, but in some cases the cast presents a tubular appearance, being of exact shape of the nasal cavity. This condition is indicative of ulceration, which, in time, may destroy the bony structure of the nose and produce a subsequent flattening of that organ.

Cases are occasionally met with in which a thick, viscid, slimy secretion coats the membrane of the nasal cavities and then putrefies, giving rise to a stench which is really overpowering, and sufficiently fetid to poison the atmosphere of a whole room; and there are others in which all the secretions of the membrane are suspended, causing an unpleasant feeling of dryness, heat and feverishness in the head and nose—a condition popularly known as "Dry Catarrh."

The disease speedily extends to the air cavities of the bones of the forchead and face epecially and the area of the property of the compression over the forchead especially and the area of the part of the throat, above and behind the soft palate. Sometimes there is pain obstinately fixed in some particular part, as in the temple, on the top of the head, at the back of the neck, or behind the orbids, and, occasionally, pain manifests itself in the face of so severe a character that it is frequently mistaken for neuralizia.

The Dreath is always tainted and at times assumes an exceeding fetid and sickening acter that it is frequently mistaken for neuralgia.

The breath is always tainted and at times assumes an exceeding fetid and sickening odor. In some cases it becomes so revoltingly offensive as to render the sufferer an object of disgust to himself as well as to others. The nasal membrane is thickened and congested, causing the nose to be stopped up, sometimes on one side, sometimes on the other, and often on both, giving rise to a disagreeable, stuffy sensation in the head, and occasioning violent and prolonged paroxysms of sneezing.

bad or nauseous taste in the mouth or throat.

The stomach generally suffers more or less and becomes weak and irritable; the appetite is capricious and nearly always bad in the morning. The patient is languid, unable to perform mental or physical labor with the usual facility, is nervous, depressed in spirits, at times fearful, timid, agitated and inclined to drowsiness and sleep, the memory weakened and permanent impairment seriously threatened.

at times fearul, tunid, agitated and interment of downiness and sleep, the memory weak-ened and permanent impairment seriously threatened.

The mucous membrane soon becomes morbidly sensitive to unfavorable influences, and in spite of the utmost care becomes affected from the slightest causes, so that at last a breath of wind upon the lining of the nose or throat becomes productive of a cold, and gives rise to serious disturbances of the respiratory organs. Thus the patient is subject to frequent and repeated colds, each attack aggravating the disease by giving it a new impulse and involving a larger extent of surface than its predecesser. It it his manner the difficulty spreads from organ to organ, invading the throat, larnyx, trachea and bronchial tubes, until, encroaching further and further, it reaches the finer ramifications of the bronchi, when but a slight impulse is required to send it to tile lungs. Catarrh may, and often does, affect other organs in the body, especially those containing a mucous membrane, such as the stomach, bowels, kidneys, etc.

By the employment of proper inhalations in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is uterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case and be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedy at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business what ever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured.

cus in the matter and would like to know:

First—Did the Bulletin get $30,000, as charged by the Chronicle, for standing by the railroad company through the and thin?

Second—Is it afraid to press the libel suit, lest the fact should be proved?

The public curiosity concerning this famous litigation has from time to time been whetted into eagerness by various incidental circumstances. In one of the Colton letters, for example, allusion was made to the railroad's success in "caving Fitch and Pickering down the bank." Of course, everybody understood this to be a figurative expression; but whether the "figure" was $30,000 or a less sum, of course no one can say with certainty, except the parties to the trade. It was a large sum to pay for an indifferent whistle.

The point, however, is not so much the companion of the control of the cont J. M. ELLIOTT Casher

In the sum paid, if it was paid, as in the fact that Fitch and Pickering's influence is a purchasable commodity.

There is also another aspect in which to view this long-slumbering libel suit. If the Chronicle is really satisfied that, as Mr. Huntington alleged, Fitch and Pickering were really "caved down the bank," why does it not press fer a prosecution of the suit? Or does it hesitate on the ground that it is not clear in respect to the actual sum used in the "caving" process? It may have been $30 instead of $30,000. The world is prone to exaggeration, and we are inclined to think that $30 is nearer Fitch and Pickering's figure than $30,000. However, we are liable to err, as is mankind in general; but like Mr. Tite Barnacle's brilliant son in the Circumlecution Office, we "want to know."

Both the Chronicle and Bulletin owe it to the public to state precisely how much it cost the railroad company to "cave" the Bulletin "down the bank." This inquiry has a particular point just now, in view of the fact that the support of a morning paper was lately offered to the railroad company "for $100,000 and social recognition," and the price was subsequently reduced to "social recognition" alone The fluctuations in the market price of "influence," so far as certain newspapers are concerned, appear to have a very wide range. The Law of Society.

The Chicago Inter Ocean tells with tragic pathos a story of inhumanity, that, if recited in fiction, would be pronounced as extravagantly unreal, and a libel upon society. A young orphan girl, hardly more than a child in years, maimed by the loss of an arm, a telegraph operator by occupation, in the bitter cold of Christmas eve is turned out upon the street, wanders starving, desperate, half-crazed and freezing on the chief highway of Chicago, and finally, falling upon the icy pavement, becomes a mother. Her babe is found dying of cold; the mother, driven to insanity, had left it, and staggered along the street filled with merry holiday-keepers, until a policeman seized her, cast her into prison, and preferred against her a charge of infanticide. Here she was left to suffer and moan in her delirium instead of being taken to a hospital, a half-dozen of which were within easy reach. Her betrayer, an operator in the same telegraph office, is unmolested, retains his place, is socially received, his-very name scrupulously kept from the public, and all the open shame and crushing responsibility that should rest on him is visited upon his young victim, whose name to the hour of the disclosure of her ruin had been as fair as that of any. The Inter Ocean, in its indignation over a state of society that permits such discrimination and brands infamy so unequally, loses its temper and calls for the revival of the old Dutch law, which gave death to whatever man betrayed an orphan of the State. The cowardly toleration of society is the interposing arm that shields men and women from the just deserts of such inhumanity as our contemporary narrates. There are thousands of humane people ready to lift up the fallen and succor the sinful in the bitterness of their woe, and it is singularly unfortunate that in the Chicago case to none of these did the knowledge of it come.

Social laws are often one-sided; even the written law of the land is discriminating; both treat such "double crimes," as Holland put it, u no longer be one-sided. Until woman herself reforms the social code, it will remain just as it is.

But how can she accomplish this? By methods comparatively easy. If even a small group of the wives, mothers and daughters of any given community who set the pattern for good conduct, resolve as determinedly to refuse recognition to the men who work women's ruin, as they do to modify a fashion or set any other rule for social custom, they will do all that need be done. As it is, teo many women of society, whose cheeks would mantle with indignant blood at the mere suggestion of countenancing infamy in another, give recognition to men of the class our contemporary so justly lashes. Let a dozen good families in any town or city refuse their threshold to the feet of the betrayers of women, and withdraw from any social assembly where they may be received; let them keep themselves as free from contact with these moral lepers as they do from the touch of the victim, and the society in which they move will make outcasts of these inhuman wretches who promise and break with those whose very weakuess constitutes their chief claim to man's chivalrous forbearance and protection. As revolutionary social decrees have been made effective, and this may be—it will be. For it is impossible to believe that mothers will, by committing their daughters to the society of betrayers, go on forever teaching the former that the unpardonable sin is woman's only, and the crime of the man is worthy the condonation of the pure and the virtuous. If civilization is to attain to that lofty plane toward which in its wonderful progress it is making way; unless the ultimate of social achievement has been reached; unless, indeed, woman refuses the social scepter which the world's advancement and enlightenment tender her, she will presently cease to teach her daughters the loathsome doctrine that in the conduct of man that is driven white which in 'woman is ineffecable blackness.

An Honest Assessment.

An Honest Assessment.

[Anabelm Gazette.]

Ex-Mayor Spence of Los Angeles in his valedictory address recommended that the next assessment in that city be an honest one, as an experiment. He did not mean to convey the idea that the assessments made heretofore have been dishonest ones, but that according to a custom which is honored with great tenacity by assessors, property had been valued at about one-fourth of its cash value. He said:

"Our city is assessed at $19,000,000, when any sensible person knows that bur times nineteen millions would be when any sensible person knows that bur times nineteen millions would be marer the figure. A low assessment makes a high rate of taxation; a fair assessment of values makes a low rate of axation."

There is great room for reform in the methods of assessment. The present system is full of inequalities and injustice; and, as pointed out by Mr. Spence, the result of the ridiculously-low valuations placed upon property is that the rate of taxation is alarmingly high. The stranger who is asked $10,000 for a piece of property, and who is told that the rate of taxation in this county is $1.40 on the $100, is pardonable for thinking that he is being gouged when it is further explained to him that the property is assessed for only $3000, or perhaps less. We echo Mr. Spence's suggestion: Give us an honest assessment, just as an experiment.

Didn't Want a Tutor.

[Cleveland Sun.]

A well-to-do farmer from Holmes county recently came up to Cleveland with quite a load on his mind. He has a daughter just growing into womanhood and wants to give her a better education than the facilities of his neighborhood afford. In pursuance of this idea he calledon a Cleveland friend last week and asked his advice. "Well," said the friend, "you might send her up here and give her the advantages that our schools afford." "I don't know," answered the father; "I hate to have her leave home; she ought to have just as good an education as the best of 'em, an' I can afford to pay for it, too; I want her to learn the languages, you know, an' dancin', an' etiquet, an' music." "Suppose," said the friend, "suppose you get a tutor for her." "A tooter!" cried the father, "gosh, man, I don't expect her to play in no brass band! If she learns the pianny, that's enough."
